

Elsbeth Mills Rendall

Elsbeth is a barrister who now specialises in professional skills development and consultancy in the professional services field. She is able to draw on expertise gained in a varied career in professional services to deliver training in communication skills (both written and oral), negotiation, persuasion and influencing to improve outcomes, business development and marketing skills.

Elsbeth was the first Chambers Director at Enterprise Chambers, Lincoln's Inn from 1998 to 2000 where she was responsible for the overall efficiency of chambers and the implementation of business development strategies. She has over ten years' experience of training and development in professional services and was formerly Head of Professional Development at Herbert Smith between 1997 and 1998 and National Head of Training at DLA Piper between 1994 and 1997.

She is a visiting Lecturer in Professional Skills at St Mary's College, the University of Surrey, on the Masters in Education Programme, and is on the Bar Council's Equal Opportunities list of recommended trainers and facilitators.

Elsbeth works with fresh to deliver strategic business development planning and implementation and management skills to legal services businesses. She also offers assessment and implementation of learning and development needs to enable individuals, teams and organisations to meet specific business objectives.
